

1. What are Transitional Devices?

Transitional devices are joining words or phrases. They connect one idea to another idea in a paragraph so that the writing becomes smooth and clear.

Think of them as bridges between sentences. Without them, sentences feel broken and confusing.

Example without transition: I woke up early. I was late for school. (This feels sudden.)

With transition: I woke up early. However, I was still late for school.

2. Why are they important in exams?

In Federal Board papers, they give a paragraph with blanks and a list of transitional devices at the top. You have to put the correct word in the correct blank. If you understand the meaning of each device, you can easily choose the right one.

3. Most Common Transitional Devices (Learn these first)

Teach him these groups with simple meaning + example:

A. Addition (adding more information)

- and
- also
- moreover
- furthermore
- in addition
- besides

Example: He is intelligent. Moreover, he is hardworking.

B. Contrast (showing opposite idea)

- but
- however
- although
- yet
- on the other hand
- nevertheless

Example: It was raining. However, we went for a walk.

C. Cause and Effect (reason and result)

- because
- so
- therefore
- as a result
- consequently
- thus

Example: He studied hard. Therefore, he got good marks.

D. Time / Sequence (order of events)

- first
- then
- next
- after that
- finally
- meanwhile

Example: First, wash your hands. Then, start eating.

E. Example / Illustration

- for example
- for instance
- such as

Example: I like fruits, for example, mangoes and bananas.

F. Conclusion

- in conclusion
- to sum up
- finally
- therefore

Example: In conclusion, education is the key to success.

4. How to choose the correct transitional device (Very Important)

Teach him this simple method:

1. Read the sentence before the blank.
 2. Read the sentence after the blank.
 3. Ask yourself:
 - Is the second sentence adding more information? → use moreover / also
 - Is it showing opposite idea? → use however / but
 - Is it showing result? → use therefore / so
 - Is it giving an example? → use for example
 - Is it showing time order? → use then / finally

5. Practice Paragraph (Do this with him)

Give him this paragraph and the list:

List: however, therefore, moreover, for example, finally

Education is very important for every student. _____, it helps us get good jobs.
_____, it makes us good citizens. Many students work hard. _____, some students waste their time. We should study regularly. _____, we can achieve our goals.
_____, hard work always brings success.

Correct answers:

1. Moreover
 2. For example
 3. However
 4. Therefore
 5. Finally

6. Quick Tips

- Never put a transitional device without understanding the meaning.
- Look at both sides of the blank.
- Most common ones in board papers are: however, therefore, moreover, furthermore, for example, finally, although, so.
- Practice 2–3 paragraphs daily.
